With a smooth, soulful voice and a collection of heartfelt and captivating songs, Joe has established himself as one of the most cherished R&B artists of our time. His achievements include multiple chart-topping hits and a dedicated fanbase that spans the globe.

A self-described “country boy” born in South Georgia and raised in Alabama, Joe often accompanied his traveling evangelist father on the road. Growing up, he also learned to play the guitar and piano while developing his vocal skills in church. Joe's dream of attending Dillard University in New Orleans to study business and law took a backseat when he opted to relocate to New Jersey in pursuit of a musical career. After notching his first R&B top 10 for Mercury Records in 1993 with “I'm in Luv,” Joe began hitting his stride in the mid-'90s with the R&B and pop crossover smash “All the Things (Your Man Won't Do).”

An ensuing string of hits—“All That I Am,” “I Wanna Know,” “No One Comes Close”—sealed Joe's reputation in the 2000s as an R&B superstar. And the seven-time Grammy nominee's memorable collaborations with Mariah Carey (“Thank God I Found You”), Big Pun (“Still Not a Player”) and G-Unit (“Wanna Get to Know You”) further underscored his musical versatility.

“I'd love to be remembered in the same league as a Marvin Gaye,” says Joe. “And I've got time. That's the beauty of R&B. It's a classy genre — and class always lasts.”
